

Speedway League Racing in South Africa, 1947 - 1959

THE TRANSVAAL LEAGUE.

The accompanying table is a summary of collated South African speedway league campaigns over the 12 years of team racing competition in the Union during the heyday of speedway in S.A. following WW2. At that time speedway was thriving and the set-up emulated the UK scene as much as possible as British and Scandinavian riders, as well as New Zealanders migrated to the Southern hemisphere after the closure of their European season. Initially, for the 1947/48 season, the 4 assembled teams raced all matches at the Wembley Stadium in Johannesburg and although bases were found for the following year these were short lived and it was back to Wembley for 1949/50. Another local venture was found to the East of the city at Boksburg and it and Wembley served as base for all 4 teams for the next few years.

THE NATIONAL LEAGUE, - "SOUTH AFRICAN NATIONAL SPEEDWAY LEAGUE".

When Durban's Hoy Park in Natal opened in 1952, and being outwith Transvaal's boundaries, the speedway league became the S.African Speedway National League, though still numbering just 4 teams but now with 3 tracks. The Germiston Stars continued as nomads, using mainly Boksburg as a shared home base, (though, as in many previous and subsequent years, the riding of 'home' meetings at other stadia would continue not to be an exceptional occurrence for any team.) In the following '53/'54 season, with the opening of Olympia Park in Springs the Germiston Stars team became the Springs Stars and the league expanded to 5 members with the addition of Randfontein Aces and its own home base, that complement continuing for the season starts at least, in each of the following seasons to the end of the decade and the end of league racing..

The Wembley, Durban and Springs tracks would continue as the mainstay sites of league racing but though Pretoria re-opened at its own base in '54/'55 the Randfontein track was declared not raceable the following season and the 4 away matches the Aces had ridden were expunged from the league records of 1955/56. In 1956/57 there were 2 rival organisations, the SRA and the SA.SCB, and ostensibly 2 league campaigns, the consequences of which would prove disastrous for speedway both in the Union and, to a lesser extent but nonetheless disruptive, in the UK, (- the details of which could not be given justice here.) The Pretoria and Randfontein tracks were operated by visiting tourists under Trevor Redmond and the SCB banner, tracking 3 teams, whilst Buddy Fuller and the Riders Association tracked 5 teams at the 3 mainstay sites plus Klerksdorp and its Hawks at a new fourth base. Without any established domestic riders the SCB league struggled to field teams without widespread guesting, such that the competition turned into little more than a series of challenge matches and the league was abandoned uncompleted. All parties suffered financial failures.

With Buddy Fuller's SRA tracks banned by the SA Control Board he resigned as the riders' chairman in August '57 and the two organisations seemed reconciled with the formation of the National Speedway Union for the forthcoming campaign. Many riders switched to the London-ACU sanctioned official national body and the '57/58 league was to comprise Durban Hornets, Springs Stars, Pretoria Eagles and Randfontein Rockets. It was January '58 before the Wembley Lions started their season as the last SRA stragglers came across, but having undertaken only 2 matches their results were expunged from the records and Pretoria took what was to be the last championship title for the second time in the life of the SA League. Their previous win had been in '55/'56 under the captaincy of Doug Serrurier while Durban Hornets had secured the title on 3 occasions in the course of just 5 years. Though Wembley was considered the Mecca of South African speedway, only once, in the initial season of the Transvaal league, is its team, riding as the Johannesburg Pirates, known to have taken a league championship title. Despite winning the league the Pretoria promoters reckoned to have been close to bankruptcy: neither Fuller nor Redmond could afford to subsidise solo racing, the latter declaring he wouldn't be returning to the Union for '58/'59. A plan was therefore formulated to reduce costs by running 4-man teams without visiting foreigners, in shorter 8-heat double-header matches, - team A v. team B, followed by team C v. team D - , but when, after initial challenge matches further losses were incurred, Springs closed and the Durban organisation also changed, the project was doomed to failure. The Pretoria meeting of Jan.30th 1959, - a handicap team challenge match - , was to be the last stand-alone solo speedway meeting in the capital, and with Buddy Fuller running 'Cavalcade of Speed' meetings at Wembley, riders drifted back to their speedway figurehead as the NSU fell apart and league racing in South Africa had finished.

LEAGUE STATISTICS.

The following tables list both individual rider statistics and league formats, plus concluding results, - matches and tables. On more than one occasion league programmes were not concluded, on others a match result remains unknown despite extensive trawling of data recently revealed, (2014) from the Henry Long Collection. What is presented here is considered to be the most complete set of data yet collated, incorporating results and scores both from the newly revealed information and from listings derived from SA sports journalist Ken McLeod. Although minor variations in rider totals may be seen elsewhere, the ranking shown here are given to illustrate relative status rather than absolute value, and to identify riders seasons of activity, e.g. their first year as a racer, their last before retirement from the sport. A number of likely reasons for any difference are listed within the National Lge. rider scores table.
